

AUTHOR EVENTS AND VISIBILITY

Where we will be this fall and winter

Six rooms between September and December, and a seat at the table in each one

A few of the rooms we have already been in. Entrenista Founder's Weekend, Pink Skirt Summit, Speakeasy LA, VIP Day LA, Small Biz Expo NYC, CEO Day NYC, Writers Conference Riyadh.

THE SEASON AHEAD

These are the events Lucky Book Publishing is hosting, co-hosting, or attending as a partner between September and December.

Each one is a chance to meet the leadership team at LBP, talk about your book idea or book marketing for your existing books. These rooms are a chance to put your book in front of new readers, meet other authors on our list, and build the kind of relationships that pay off long after launch week.

Bring your book idea, books (if applicable) and your business cards.

We will handle the stage, the table, and the introductions. Reserve your spot with our events team at diana@luckybookpublishing.com

WHAT WE DO WHEN YOU SHOW UP

Getting there is the hard part. Once you are in the room, we make sure the day is worth the trip.

We take care of all of the event logistics and introduce you to the people worth meeting.

✿ LUCKY BOOK PUBLISHING

We also talk about your work when you are not in the room so that you feel comfortable and ready to shine.

What do you get? You go home with photos, video, contacts, and enough material to keep posting for months plus a new set of raving fans looking forward to your success.

THE COST OF STAYING HOME

✿ LUCKY BOOK PUBLISHING

Most authors finish the book and then disappear back into their inbox. Launch week comes and goes, the algorithm moves on, and the work that took years starts gathering dust on Amazon's long tail. The book is fine. The author is invisible.

Nobody writes a book to keep it on a shelf. A book can build authority, attract clients, open doors, and get you on stages. But people have to know it exists.

We do events for our authors because that is how the work compounds. A panel becomes a podcast invite. A book table becomes a coaching client. A conversation at the cocktail reception becomes the introduction that lands you on a stage you could not have booked yourself.

The book opens the door. Being in the room is what walks you through it.

You do not need to attend every event. Pick the rooms that fit.
